

30DayJourney

DAY 18:
ONE IS TOO SMALL A NUMBER TO

Watch: Watch today's short video. Pay attention to the question John asks and his perspective on the day's intentional action.

Think: Who do you know that shares a similar interest with you for making a difference? Do you know someone who shares your why? Or who is moved by similar causes or needs that you respond to?

Do: Today's task is to identify one person that you could team up with to make a difference, and approach that person with the idea of working together. If you simply make the request, consider that a success—even if the person declines to work with you. The point today is to be intentional about initiating action to create partnership. If you intend to live a life of significance, this won't be the last time you do this!

Tell: When you and your friend or colleague do something together, take a photograph. And if you use social media, post the photo with the hashtag #IntentionalLiving. You can also click to share today's big idea on social media:

The greater your vision is for significance,
the more important it is for you to partner with others to achieve it.
