DAY 19: I HAVE A DREAM

Watch: Watch today's short video. Pay attention to the question John asks and his perspective on the day's intentional action.

Think: On Day 17 you were asked to write a statement describing your why, as you currently understand it. It was to be based on your one word, as well as what makes you cry, sing, and dream. Keeping all that in mind, think about the needs you see in your neighborhood, your community, or beyond. These are opportunities for you to employ your why to make a difference.

Which one do you find most compelling? If you could only ever address only one, which would it be? That, at least for the time being, is your cause.

Do: Now that you know the cause you want to do something about, write what it is in a succinct sentence beginning with, "I will work to..." For example, "I will work to feed children who don't get enough to eat when school is out." Or "I will help budding entrepreneurs in a developing country with micro-financing." Take the time to articulate your dream for making a difference.

Tell: Once you have the dream written, begin telling friends about what you want to do. Post it on social media using the hashtag #IntentionalLiving. You can also click to share today's big idea on social media:

You must know your dream before you can gather your team.
